SOCIALISTS TO BLOCK BRIAND

Decline To Join Coalition
Cabinet of New French
Premier.

PARIS, July 29.—Plans of Premier-designate Aristide Briand to form a coalition cabinet failed today when the radical Socialists refused to participate.

Thereupon, M. Briand decided to retain the former Poincare cabinet intact with himself holding the posts of premier and foreign minister.

It was expected that M. Poincare would visit President Doumergue, of France, later in the day to announce the completion of his task of forming a new government.

The radical Socialists rejected the invitation to join the ministry when Edouard Herriot, their leader, was offered a post of minister without portfolio on condition he accepted M. Briand's policies, other radical Socialist chiefs said they were dissatisfied with his offer.

The premier-designate left the foreign office early in the afternoon to confer with President Doumergue.

"I shall inform President Doumergue that I intend to retain the old cabinet," M. Briand told International News Service.

Former Premier Raymond Poincare, who resigned because of illness, was informed of the offer of a cabinet post to the radical Socialists. There were no radical Socialists in his government.

Barring unforeseen events, it was anticipated that the new cabinet would meet tonight for organization.

John Coon, Circleville, arrested late Saturday left town Sunday when he was given his choice of six months in the work house or leaving the city. Coon was held on an intoxication charge.

Severe Electric Storm Fails To Halt Robin Men

ST. LOUIS, MO., July 29.—(INS)

—Riding out an electric storm that had sent a field crowd of 20,000 scampering for cover, Pilots Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien today cruised on toward the seventeenth day of continuous flight.

At 2.17 a. m. (CST) the St. Louis Robin's sustained circling over Lambert Field passed the 378-hour mark, nearly five days longer than the previous record held by Pilots Mendell and Reinhart in the Angeleno.

To the accompaniment of rumbling thunder and lightning flashes a supply ship succeeded in feeding the Robin enough fuel to last until late today.

Jackson and O'Brien were unworried by the storm, which quickly passed, but anxious ground crews bustled and sweated in getting everything ready for a hurried landing which did not materialize.

TEST FOR SPECTATORS

The endurance flight today had developed into a test for the tired groundlings as much as for the two men of iron up above who are determined to outlast their steel and aluminum motor.

"How is the weather down there?" asked the flyers in a recent note. "Sure is fine at 5,000 feet." The reporters and camera men and the crowd which averaged 15,000 during all of the hot Sabbath, wiped perspiring brows and sighed for the altitude of an endurance flyer.

Hot weather is still weather and the ideal flying conditions which many of the experts believe have had a major part in making possible the remarkable feat of the St. Louis Robin, continued to prevail. The heavens became overcast toward dusk last night and some of the more pessimistic endurance flight bugs forecast a violent climax to the flight which would end with the plane being blown out of the skies by a terrific storm or even a tornado.

PLANS FOR LANDING

O. R. Parks, the field manager has issued a set of instructions in connection with the plane's landing which include the notification of the police department for an escort for the flyers and the hasty erection of a temporary fence around the now famous St. Louis Robin to save it from the fate of the "Spirit of St. Louis" Lindy's sky horse which was for a time threatened with mutilation at the hands of an enthusiastic crowd of souvenir seekers.

Circleville Telephone Operators Have Plenty To Do, Survey Shows

Nearly 10,000 Calls In Ordinary Day—Busiest 8 To 10:30 A. M.

When you fail to get your telephone number or do not get it as readily as expected, of en you say things about the exchange operator which are not nice and then set to wondering just what those girls are doing.

In using the telephone, but few Pickaway-co and Circleville people appreciate the labor connected with the operation of the local exchange. Little does the average person realize that on just an ordinary day 10,000 telephone calls are completed here.

The local telephone was built and organized in 1901 and was placed in operation with 572 subscribers.

The largest of the underground cables carrying these wires contains 400 pairs of wires. The smallest contain 50 pairs.

The company has on its payroll 35 employees in Circleville and 17 in the other three exchanges. 40 of these employees are women. The operators average 8 hours per day.

The company pays taxes in four counties and in almost every township in Pickaway-co.

In 1928 much work was done in removing poles to aid in widening the road for traffic.

ARMY FLIER DEAD, PILOT BADLY HURT

Note Says Plane Right, Then
Ship Falter and Falls
To Earth.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 29.—(INS).—Captain P. L. Crichton, veteran army flier, was killed and Owen Haugland, pilot of the endurance plane, Minnesota, was critically injured here today when the plane crashed after being in the air more than 100 hours.

The plane crashed just five minutes after a note had been dropped asking for gasoline and telling onlookers that all was well.

The note added that no oil was needed.

Then as the ship zoomed into the clouds, it was seen to falter. The Minnesota went into a tail-spl, hovered perilously over Wold-Chamberlain airport, and with the speed of a meteor, crashed to the ground.

Crichton was dead when rescuers reached the plane. Haugland was unconscious and was rushed to a hospital.

Crichton was piloting the plane at the time.

Haugland, who has made four attempts to better the record now being established in St. Louis, was believed to have been asleep when the crash occurred. He was found stretched upon an improvised bed.

Authorities were at a loss to account for the crash. The plane was apparently functioning well when it careened wildly and plunged downward.

The plane was in the air 155 hours.

SET OPINIONS HINDER TRIAL

Asks To Leave Room.

(BULLITIN.)
Judge Ed. Scarlett overruled the motion of the defense that court be dismissed for the afternoon because of illness of Dr. Snook but the court ruled a 30 minute recess to permit Snook to lie down.

More prospective jurors were being questioned this afternoon.

COURTROOM, COLUMBUS, O., July 29.—Dr. James H. Snook, college professor on trial for the murder of Miss Theora Hix, 25-year-old co-ed, became ill in court today and defense attorneys requested that his presence be not required at the afternoon session.

Judge Henry L. Scarlett took the request under consideration. Snook's illness was attributed to the fact that on Saturday he underwent a test at the hands of Dr. H. M. Brundage, a Columbus blood specialist, who is said to have tapped his spine.

Dr. Snook did not seem to be himself in court this morning. He was pale and wan and took no interest in the proceedings.

FIXED OPINIONS
"Fixed opinions" proved to be the chief stumbling block again today in the seemingly monumental task of obtaining a jury to try Dr. James H. Snook for the murder of Miss Theora Hix, the "bashful" co-ed.

The first three prospective jurors examined this morning were excused because they had made up their minds as to the guilt or innocence of Snook.

For four successive court days "fixed opinions" has led all other reasons for dismissal of talemens. Of the sixty-two prospective jurors examined up to late this forenoon, 21 had fixed opinions.

Thirteen were challenged because of their opposition to capital punishment. The others were excused for various reasons, such as "needed on the farm," defective hearing or ill health.

PANEL NEARLY OUT
The original panel of 75 talemens is nearing exhaustion. A new panel of 50 men and women appeared in court today and were sworn in for possible jury duty.

Circleville Telephone Operators Have Plenty To Do, Survey Shows

Nearly 10,000 Calls In Ordinary Day—Busiest 8 To 10:30 A. M.

When you fail to get your telephone number or do not get it as readily as expected, often you say things about the exchange operator which are not nice and then set to wondering just what those girls are doing.

In using the telephone, but few Pickaway-co and Circleville people appreciate the labor connected with the operation of the local exchange. Little does the average person realize that on just an ordinary day 10,000 telephone calls are completed here.

The local telephone was built and organized in 1900 and was placed in operation with 372 subscribers.

HAS 3200 SUBSCRIBERS

The plant has been enlarged and remodeled many times since it's construction and is now capable of caring for 4000 subscribers which is 800 more than the company now has. The busiest period of the day at the local exchange is from 8 to 10:30 a. m., when an average of 1500 calls are completed by the operators in attendance.

The local plant completes on an average of 260,000 calls per month and 5200 long distance calls.

According to company records, the average number of calls per subscriber is 125 each month. Long distance calls total but very few per subscriber each month.

The local company operates exchanges in Ashville, Williamsport and Laurelville which cover a good proportion of area in this county.

UNDERGROUND LINES

The local telephone company has 280 miles of poles, 4 miles of aerial wire, 3500 miles of open wire and 15 miles of underground cable in Circleville.

According to Earl W. Lutz, local manager, Circleville, has as much underground telephone wires as any city, it's size in the state, in time to come most of the poles will be removed from the streets and the wires placed underground.

The largest of the underground cables carrying these wires contains 600 pairs of wires. The smallest contain 50 pairs.

The company has on its payroll 35 employees in Circleville and 17 in the other three exchanges. 40 of these employees are women. The operators average 8 hours per day.

The company pays taxes in four counties and in almost every township in Pickaway-co.

In 1928 much work was done in removing poles to aid in widening the road for traffic.

ARMY FLIER DEAD, PILOT BADLY HURT

Note Says Plane Right, Then
Shipalters and Falls
To Earth.

MINNEAPOLIS, July 29—(INS)—Captain P. L. Crichton, veteran army flyer, was killed and Owen Haugland, pilot of the endurance plane, Minnesota, was critically injured here today when the plane crashed after being in the air more than 100 hours.

The plane crashed just five minutes after a note had been dropped asking for gasoline and telling on-lookers that all was well.

The note added that no oil was needed.

Then as the ship zoomed into the clouds, it was seen to falter. The Minnesota went into a tail-spin, hovered perilously over Wold-Chamberlain airport, and with the speed of a meteor, crashed to the ground.

Crichton was dead when rescuers reached the plane. Haugland was unconscious and was rushed to a hospital.

Crichton was piloting the plane at the time.

Haugland, who has made four attempts to better the record now being established in St. Louis, was believed to have been asleep when the crash occurred. He was found stretched upon an improvised bed.

Authorities were at a loss to account for the crash. The plane was apparently functioning well when it careened wildly and plunged downward.

The plane was in the air 155 hours.

SET OPINIONS HINDER TRIAL

Venire Nearly Exhausted As Jury Box Fills—Snook, Ill,
Asks To Leave Room.

(BULLETIN.)

Judge Ed. Scarlett overruled the motion of the defense that court be dismissed for the afternoon because of illness of Dr. Snook but the court ruled a 30 minute recess to permit Snook to lie down.

More prospective jurors were being questioned this afternoon.

(By JAMES L. KILGALLEN.)

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
COURTROOM, COLUMBUS, O.,
July 29—Dr. James H. Snook, ex-college professor on trial for the murder of Miss Theora Hix, 25-year-old co-ed, became ill in court today and defense attorneys requested that his presence be not required at the afternoon session.

Judge Henry L. Scarlett took the request under consideration. Snook's illness was attributed to the fact that on Saturday he underwent a test at the hands of Dr. H. M. Brundage, a Columbus blood specialist, who is said to have tapped his spine.

Dr. Snook did not seem to be himself in court this morning. He was pale and wan and took no interest in the proceedings.

FIXED OPINIONS

"Fixed opinions" proved to be the chief stumbling block again today in the seemingly monumental task of obtaining a jury to try Dr. James H. Snook for the murder of Miss Theora Hix, the "bashful" co-ed.

The first three prospective jurors examined this morning were excused because they had made up their minds as to the guilt or innocence of Snook.

For four successive court days "fixed opinions" has led all other reasons for dismissal of talesmen. Of the sixty-two prospective jurors examined up to late this forenoon, 21 had "fixed opinions."

Thirteen were challenged because of their opposition to capital punishment. The others were excused for various reasons, such as "needed on the farm," defective hearing or ill health.

PANEL NEARLY OUT

The original panel of 75 talesmen is nearing exhaustion. A new panel of 50 men and women appeared in court today and were sworn in for possible jury duty.

The heat in the crowded courtroom and the long grind of jury selection began to try the nerves (Continued on Page Three)

EAGLES CLUB VICTORS OVER DRY CLEANERS

Boyd Scatters 10 Hits Through Contact and Is Never in Danger.

Circleville's Eagle baseball club put a feather in its cap Sunday by trouncing the league leading Francis Dry Cleaners of Columbus by the score of 4 to 1.

The game was played at Ashville before one of the largest and most enthusiastic crowds of the year. The Eagles are just one game back of first place at this time.

Failure to connect for base hits when hits meant runs accounts for the downfall of the Columbus team. Ten bingles were gleaned from the sturdy pitching arm of Boyd, but when a hit meant a run, nothing was doing. Boyd tightened up every time it looked like an interesting moment and although touched freely at times, a claim would have been no tighter than that boy was with the paths occupied.

In only one inning, the eighth, after his team had built a sufficient lead did he permit a Columbus run to cross the rubber.

While Boyd was doing his yeoman mound work, Thomas for Columbus was also hurling good ball. Thomas gave but seven hits but ability to make hits count for runs proved Thomas' undoing.

Two runs crossed the rubber in the first round for the locals, one more came over in the third and the last tally was chalked up in the eighth.

Town "Built to Order"

Gary is a town in Lake county, Indiana, located on the extreme southern end of Lake Michigan, 26 miles southeast of the heart of Chicago. It was founded in April, 1900, by the United States Steel corporation, and was named after Elbert H. Gary, an officer of the corporation. It might well be said that it was built to order.

The general admittance to the show is set at only two bits, and the curtain raises at 8.30.

Rabbit Fur

Rabbits meet several times during the year and there is no definite time at which their fur is prime, primeness depending on various dietary and environmental conditions.

Prune of Commerce

Prunes are dried plums. This name was formerly given to practically any type of plum that was preserved by the drying process. However, today a certain type of large, reddish prune has become such a favorite that this type is now called "prune plum" or some time shortened to just "prune," so that the word "prune" may be taken either as the fresh or the dried fruit.

Early Grain Storage

The invention of pottery was the outgrowth of the desire to contribute ease in the storing of grain. The necessity for laying by food material to forestall famine by practice of storage stimulated the ingenuity of the pre-dynastic Egyptians to create vessels in which to hold grain. It has its similarity in the elevator system for grain storage that obtains in the United States.

Confidence Counts

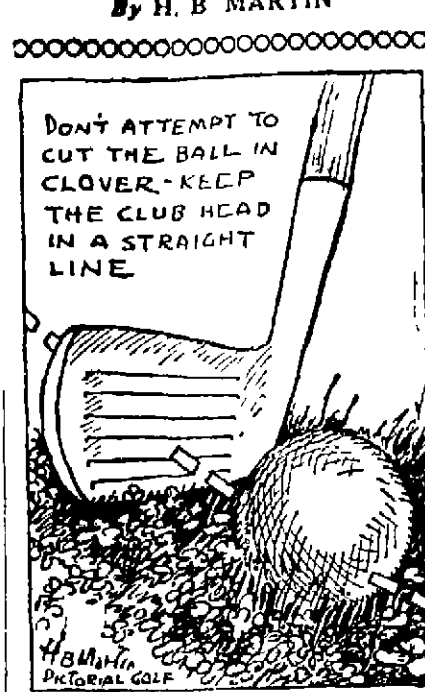

Faith in yourself is absolutely necessary, through thick and thin. A football coach says that "the team that won't be beat can't be beat." You can go farther and say that the man who won't be licked can't be licked.—Grit.

To Check Horn's Growth

To prevent the horns of cattle from growing caustic, potash should be applied from time to time.

Pictorial Golf Instruction

By H. B. MARTIN

AVOID FANCY SHOTS IN PLAYING OUT OF ROUGH

WHEN a golfer is in clover he is not always in luck. It is hard to play out of thick clover in the rough as the club, if not directed in just the right path, will cause the ball to slip. The mashing of the weeds and wet clover does not make a dry impact. Never attempt to cut the ball or try any fancy shot out of any kind of rough unless you are sure it will offer no resistance to the club head coming through properly and will provide a clean, dry hit.

Health Hint

It is a mistake to believe that, although tuberculosis is being treated more effectively than ever before it is therefore a disease not to be guarded against. Get yourself examined when in doubt and never take chances with your children.

SPINAGO SPINACH

FOR RHEUMATISM

"It has no Equal," says Sam Thomas, 502 E. Mound St.

For the past five years I suffered terribly from rheumatism. Sharp pains kept me in misery most of the time and prevented my getting about. During the whole time I tried one medicine after another from drug stores and doctors and still the pains grew worse. As a last resort I tried Spinago and am happy to say that two bottles entirely freed me of all signs of rheumatism. It is truly a wonderful medicine and I will be everlastingly grateful for the service it has rendered me.

Town "Built to Order"

Gary is a town in Lake county, Indiana, located on the extreme southern end of Lake Michigan, 20 miles southeast of the heart of Chicago. It was founded in April, 1906, by the United States Steel corporation, and was named after Elbert H. Gary, an officer of the corporation. It might well be said that it was built to order.

test may not go the full three rounds.

The general admittance to the show is set at only two bits, and the curtain raises at 8:30.

Rabbit Fur

Rabbits molt several times during the year and there is no definite time at which their fur is prime, primeness depending on various dietary and environmental conditions.

Prune of Commerce

Prunes are dried plums. This name was formerly given to practically any type of plum that was preserved by the drying process. However, today a certain type of large, reddish prune has become such a favorite that this type is now called "prune-plum," or sometimes shortened to just "prune," so that the word "prune" may be taken either as the fresh or the dried fruit.

Early Grain Storage

The invention of pottery was the outgrowth of the desire to contribute ease in the storing of grain. The necessity for laying by food material to forefeed famine by practice of storage stimulated the ingenuity of the pre-dynastic Egyptians to create vessels in which to hold grain. It has its similarity in the elevator system for grain storage that obtains in the United States.

Confidence Counts

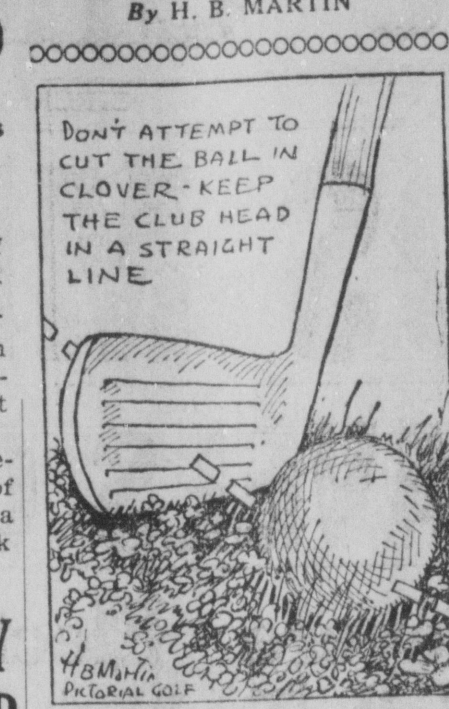

Faith in yourself is absolutely necessary, through thick and thin. A football coach says that "the team that won't be beat can't be beat." You can go farther and say that the man who won't be licked can't be licked.—Grit.

To Check Horn's Growth

To prevent the horns of cattle from growing caustic potash should be applied from time to time.

Pictorial Golf Instruction

By H. B. MARTIN

AVOID FANCY SHOTS IN PLAYING OUT OF ROUGH

WHEN a golfer is in clover he is not always in luck. It is hard to play out of thick clover in the rough as the club, if not directed in just the right path, will cause the ball to slip. The mashing of the weeds and wet clover does not make a dry impact. Never attempt to cut the ball or try any fancy shot out of any kind of rough unless you are sure it will offer no resistance to the club head coming through properly and will provide a clean, dry hit.

Come on to the ball from directly behind and keep the club in this position all the way. (© 1929, Bell Syndicate.)

Health Hint

It is a mistake to believe that, although tuberculosis is being treated more effectively than ever before, it is therefore a disease not to be guarded against. Get yourself examined when in doubt and never take chances with your children.

Betrayed High Office

The first impeachment of a high government official in America took place on June 27, 1689. Sir Edmund Andros, royal governor of New England, was impeached by the Colonial house of deputies at Boston and sent to England.

17 DEAD IN OHIO, MANY HURT SUNDAY

Mercer, 25, of Mt. Clemens, Mich., was fatally injured and her two-year-old daughter, Jewell, was seriously hurt when their automobile collided with one driven by Charles Berkey, 25, of Canton. Mr. Mercer and their 8-year-old son, received minor injuries in the crash. Berkey and William McDermott, 30, of Canton, who was riding with Berkey, were in a hospital today but will recover.

Michael Cross, 23, was in a Columbus hospital here today with a broken neck which he received yesterday when he dived from the top of a 15-foot tree into three feet of water.

Word came from Cadiz that Joe Russo, 48, Parlette coal miner, was killed last night when he tried to stop a gun fight which is alleged to have taken place between Rocco Tredeaso, 35, and Frank Deandel, 43. Authorities are looking for Tredeaso.

The first fatality due to the heat in Hamilton-co this year was that of a man believed to be Leroy Hannaford, 42, which occurred at Cincinnati Sunday morning.

KILLED BY GASOLINE
Dayton reported that Woodford Kinser, 20, was fatally burned when he lighted a match to see whether gasoline was flowing in to the tank of his auto. Running out of gas, Kinser had hauled a passing motorist and obtained enough to take him to a filling station.

Stepping into a deep hole at Crystal Lake, Kenneth Thompson, 24, of New Carlisle, was drowned while pushing a boat from the bank, preparatory to fishing.

Death of Charles Petty, 35, resulted when the auto in which he was riding crashed into a Big Four freight train at a crossing in Kenton. Oat Curl, 22, a passenger in the auto, was seriously hurt.

4 CARS COLLIDE
One man was killed and 16 persons were injured when four automobiles collided on a road three miles south of Kent. Oliver Hill, 28, of Johnsonburg, Pa., is the dead man. Several others are in hospitals, and John McReady, of Akron, is not expected to live.

The accident occurred when one automobile sideswiped another and two others piled up against the wreckage.

DAYTON BOYS KILLED
Two Dayton youths, Franklin Roberts and Russell McMillan, suffered fatal injuries when the automobile in which they were riding, skidded into a telephone pole near Springfield. Roberts was instantly killed and McMillan died in a Springfield hospital a short time after the crash in a hospital.

Cleveland reported two deaths due to the heat wave. Jacob Vogt, 62, and John C. Fulton, 28, are the dead there.

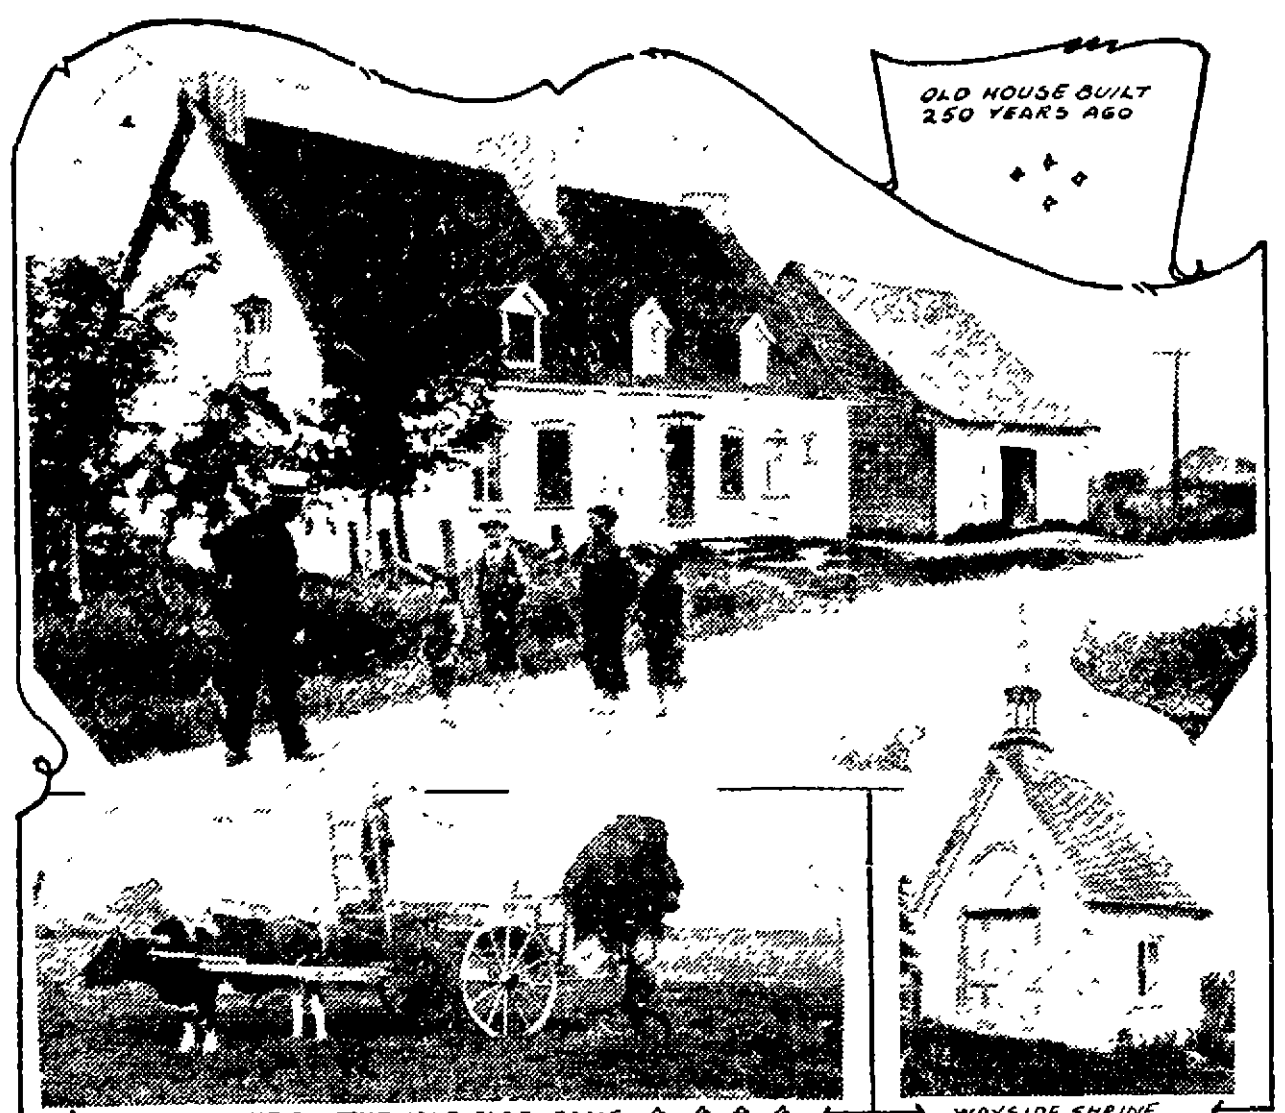

The heat claimed another victim in Gallia-co, near Gallipolis, when Joseph Davis died because of the intense warmth of the weather.

Cecil Kinkade, 21, of Malta, was drowned in the Muskingum river near Zanesville. The accident occurred at a point known as Rockey Locke.

John Ernst, 30, lost his life in a small creek near Newark while bathing.

William Hawkins, 22, who resides at Reilly, near Hamilton, waded beyond his depth in a stream near his home and was drowned. He could not swim.

Quebec's Island of Orleans, Which Cartier Called "Isle of Bacchus"—Where Dwells Peace of Centuries

"We likewise found quantities of vines such as we had seen nowhere else in the world and which led us to call this the Island of Bacchus."

Thus Cartier, the St. Malo mariner who discovered the Isle of Orleans in 1535, first named it. In the ensuing four centuries have come the shores of the adventurer, the explorer, the pioneer, the builder of empire, followed by the great ships of commerce; but the Isle of Bacchus has not known them, and has slept before the portals of the new world for many generations. Not that it has been forgotten.

But that the bigger ships have gone by. Industry has not destroyed its charm, and today it remains, if not the pristine Isle of Cartier, a piece of Old France as translated by those who shortly followed him.

Progress has been slow. Its people have learned the secret of content. Their tongue, their modes, their homes, are of a century ago. They weave their catalogue, a relation of our book-rugs, and they live in homespun. They are blessed with old people. Yet, a short ferry distance away, Quebec, with its ramparts, its Caneau Front, and its ocean shipping, keeps pace with the advance of the times.

At Ste. Petronille, one of the quaint little villages where wealthy Quebec has its summer homes, an inn has recently been opened, so that it is now possible for the visitor to rest for a while and absorb at leisure the charm and beauty of the forgotten island. But he must be prepared to eat of the good viands of the habitant and to live a little closer to homespun. The people of the island will welcome him with good nature, but they have little liking for the modern. They have the secret of content and good living on the island of Bacchus. The new inn called La Catalogue, was once a seigniorial manor.

Elizabeth Ruggles Leaves Organ To Church in Memory of Her Parents

Former Resident Makes Gift By Letter To Rev. Toensmeier, Read Sunday.

At the morning service of the Presbyterian church Sunday a letter was read by the minister, the Rev. E. S. Toensmeier, from Miss Elizabeth Ruggles of Santa Monica, Calif., which contained the following: "I wish to offer a new pipe organ for our church which I understand is much needed. It has long been my desire to erect a suitable instrument in memory of my dear father and mother but owing to impaired health have been obliged to defer the undertaking."

Miss Ruggles, a former resident of this city, has already made numerous gifts to Circleville and residents here. This last gift, the most handsome of all will be in memory of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Ruggles, also of Circleville. They were faithful members of the church, which will be beautified by the pipe organ gift of their daughter.

After the letter had been read, and its contents realized, Col. C. E. Groce arose and made a motion that the trustees of the church be instructed to accept the gift. The motion carried, and all stood and joined in singing the doxology.

The installation of the organ is expected to take about three months. No gift to the church could have been more acceptable, and certainly none more appropriate.

ATTORNEYS ARGUE
"You (meaning Chester), are trying to force this man into the jury box," shouted Ricketts during the argument. "And he has a fixed opinion."

"Don't try to scare me, Mr. Ricketts," retorted the much younger Mr. Chester.

The court rapped for order and the examination of Trimble continued. He was finally excused.

Dr. Snook, looking rather pale today, sat slumped in his chair paying little attention to the proceedings. Frequently he closed his eyes and seemed to be lost in thought. He paid no attention to the big audience of girls and women who gazed at him.

Mr. and Mrs. Melvin T. Hix, parents of the slain girl, sat 20 paces away. They seemed to be walked.

JURY BOX FILLED.
Finally, the jury box was filled when Donald E. Post, bookkeeper, in a bank, was accepted.

He took seat number two and court declared a recess.

With the jury box again filled, court was adjourned until 1:30 this afternoon when a thirteenth, or emergency juror, will have to be selected in the event the state and defense exercise no more peremptory challenges.

AGAIN CUT WOMAN

But the jury box did not remain filled for long. When the recess was over, the defense rejected juror number seven, Mrs. Nellie McClintock, a housewife.

On went the examination of talesmen. J. N. White, a secretary was quickly excused when he said he "did not think he could sentence a man to death." The next talesman was excused of an incorrect initial on his subpoena.

Then came Paul L. Weaver, the sixty-seventh talesman questioned. His sister and mother live in Mansfield, O. He knew Prosecutor Chester in army service but this fact would not influence him. He was not opposed to capital punishment. He had no "fixed opinion."

Weaver was accepted and entered the box as juror number seven.

But the jury box did not remain filled for long. When the recess was over, the defense rejected juror number seven, Mrs. Nellie McClintock, a housewife.

On went the examination of talesman. J. N. White, a secretary was quickly excused when he said he "did not think he could sentence a man to death." The next talesman was excused of an incorrect initial on his subpoena.

Then came Paul L. Weaver, the sixty-seventh talesman questioned. His sister and mother live in Mansfield, O. He knew Prosecutor Chester in army service but this fact would not influence him. He was not opposed to capital punishment. He had no "fixed opinion."

Weaver was accepted and entered the box as juror number seven.

An important clue has been discovered in the revelation that two of the escaped jailbirds commandeered a car driven by an Auburn man, forced him to drive through Syracuse, and then headed north toward Lake Ontario after throwing their "chauffeur" from his car on a deserted stretch of road.

LOSE BERTILLION CARDS

Virtually every structure on the prison grounds, with the exception of the main sleeping quarters of the men and women prisoners, was razed to the ground. Preliminary estimates of the material damaged exceeded the quarter million dollar mark, and in addition virtually all the prison records, including Bertillion cards and finger-prints, were lost in the blaze.

G. O. P. RESPONSIBLE

More and more is the disposition manifest to attribute a degree of responsibility for the tariff, now incubating behind closed doors, at the hands of the Republican members of the Senate Finance Committee.

There has been a general effort exercised indirectly to convey the impression that the President was opposed to the exactions of the bill as it came from the House of Representatives, but nobody has yet been able to get a direct expression from the President about this.

By the time the Senate reconvenes on August 19," said Senator LaFollette, Republican Progressive of Wisconsin, "we may expect to see the House bill, in a new dress, presented to the Senate with much talk of 'improvements' made over the original draft and with great emphasis placed upon the 'limited' character of the Senate's revision of existing rates.

"An effort will undoubtedly be made by the Old Guard sponsors of the bill to extract an endorsement from President Hoover, and in any event it is certain that every Senator elected as a Republican who refuses to accept this measure as it comes from the hands of the Finance Committee will be branded as a trouble-maker, an obstructionist and an enemy of the manufacturing and farming industries of the country."

Senator LaFollette, of course, had in mind the position of the Progressive wing of the Republican majority, which has been standing with the Democratic members of the Senate to compel a recession from such items as the sugar extortion, the boot and shoe iniquities, and the building materials graft. "Sooner or later," said Senator LaFollette, "President Hoover must decide whether he stands with Senators Smoot, Watson, Reed, Edge, and other members of the Senate Finance Committee on the tariff or against them. After dictating the terms of the farm bill and condemning the debenture plan in unmeasured terms, the President cannot with very good grace remain neutral and silent on the tariff."

Senator Connally, Texas Democrat, points out that the proposed tariff does not fit in at all with Herbert Hoover's campaign utterances regarding our foreign commerce. "President Hoover," said Senator Connally, "made his famous South American good-will tour to encourage cordial relations with the countries of South America and to build up our foreign trade. If the present tariff bill is to follow the tracks of the President's tour and arouse resentment instead of good will, if we are to sell American goods in South America we must buy some of their products."

Not long ago Paul Busch, assistant to the Mayor of Berlin, Germany, made an inspection tour of American fruit producing and marketing structures and indicated that the Berlin district could consume annually the surplus fruit crop of California if some trade reciprocity could be arranged.

"Germany needs the fruit of California and Florida," said Senator Connally, "and wants to buy their surplus but cannot do so unless Germany can ship goods to the United States in payment. If we are to sell American pork, cotton and wheat to Germany and other countries of Europe we must permit those countries to ship us goods in return. They do not have the gold to make payment."

"When the debenture plan of farm relief was pending in the Senate," continued Senator Connally, "President Hoover solemnly warned Congress that foreign governments would retaliate for such an enactment by establishing countervailing duties. We have not been told by the administration why such foreign governments would so act in the case of a debenture and not in the case of a prohibitive tariff."

Senator Borah, Republican of Idaho, assails the new tariff bill from another angle—one peculiarly concerned with the President. Borah denounces the flexible tariff provision as exceeding in wickedness any proposal in the new tariff bill.

Those who propose the transformation of the Tariff Commission from a non-partisan to a partisan body, bestowing on the President actually absolute power to do with tariff rates as they like, have ever proven on President Hoover's message to Congress, calling for the reorganization of a Tariff Board.

THEATERS

NEW PICTURE FOR HAINES

For the past 15 years, "Alias Jimmy Valentine" has been perhaps the most sensationally and perennially successful play on the American stage.

For over a generation, young and old America alike have thrilled, laughed and cried over the story of the dashing young crook who outwits the police forces of half a dozen cities, only to give himself away at last by cracking the safe in which is imprisoned the sister of the girl he loves.

Now Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has taken the story and made it as modern as the costumes of the year after next. This, the organization's initial talking picture, is at the Cliftona Theater.

Haines, who gained his first reputation as the premier wisecracker of the American screen, brings to "Alias Jimmy Valentine" a sense of comedy that has been mellowed and softened by experience. To assist him in his laughs, Karl Dane and Tully Marshall, two of the most experienced laugh-getters of the screen, contribute what is perhaps the best performance of their career. The three of them bring a new idea to the screen, that of a comedy trio instead of a comedy team. Their work together is a sensation.

As leading lady, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer selected Leila Hyams, who was chosen by Henry Clive, the noted artist and illustrator, as the most beautiful blonde in Hollywood. Clive interviewed more than 5,000 blondes before making his decision. Miss Hyams brings to "Alias Jimmy Valentine," more than a year's experience with motion pictures as well as a verve and personality that is vivid and refreshing.

Secret of Composition of China Long Sought

The making of china is an intricate and long-drawn-out process. It requires 25 different operations and four weeks' time to make even the dainty white plates which are found in cheap restaurants. The finer chinas require the highest of skilled labor and materials, and their decoration is an art in itself. Many tried in vain to discover the secret of the composition. Extensive various attempts were attended with success in Italy and France. In 1710 a German scholar named Boettger discovered the process after years of study. By the end of the Eighteenth century Germany had not only the secret, but the Oriental and East Indian companies that placed the secret of manufacture, which for centuries was so rare that only princes, kings or popes could possess a piece of it, into the common realm of the average family.

TOO MANY COOKS?

The Skyscraper Murder

by SAMUEL SPEWACK

DWELLERS in big cities go from one mystery to another these days. Crimes are committed, men and women are killed in apparently the most open fashion and frequently that is the last heard of it. Of course, there is an investigation—there is always that. Then, after the customary seven days allotted to wonders, the whole thing drops out of sight.

But not so with the Skyscraper Murder. Here is one that was run to earth and in the process the delvers into the mystery are given plenty of thrills.

Mr. Spewack is a master hand at depicting situations of this sort. Obviously the story is fiction but perhaps there will be those who can see in it a marked resemblance to actuality.

There is a thrill a day in the Skyscraper Murder.

A DIVORCE PARTY.

AT MIDNIGHT at the Club New York, and Lucy Lally, a genial of hostesses, prepared to welcome her gullible guests. A word with the head-waiter, a word with her chef, a word with Lucy Lally's Jazz Harmonists, two words with her unofficial bartender and wine steward, and three words with her little girls—for these last were the chief attraction of the Club New York, and Lucy knew it.

Lucy was what her patrons called a "hot sketch." A born clown and sycophant, she had "on peculiar distinction by confiding in each one of the gaily-seekers that they were dubs and she was out to swindle them. This tickled their vanities, and they came back for more. So Lucy watered her champagne and commanded her little girls to supply the necessary fizz, which was cheaper, and as far as the guests were concerned, more effective. Her profits were so enormous she never complained of the heavy toll of craft paid to enforcement officers. "The Club New York, in consequence, was never raided and the guests feared no sudden and sometimes unwelcome notoriety. And Lucy grew rich and fat.

You could find at Lucy's a sociological cross-section of New York: debutantes and demimondaines, bankers and bootleggers, buyers, thieves, actors, screen actresses, panders, pick-pockets and a goodly number of stupid but otherwise harmless bourgeoisie who looked at Lucy as they looked at their books, plays, newspapers and love affairs—as a source of color to singularly colorless lives.

And Lucy went from one to the other, back-slapping and hand-shaking, surveying each one with her shrewd blue eyes, laughing constantly in overflowing good nature, and calling for cheers, applause and noisy merriment until the dawn.

At 1 a. m. you could hear Lucy's guffaws above the rhythmic wailing of the band. It was then she presented her dancing girls, whom she underpaid and overworked and with whom gentlemen could sit at tables for the price of a hundred-dollar bill, and feel they were gay dogs indeed.

On this particular morning Lucy was in better form than ever. She had an eye to the piquant and the news had reached her that an extraordinary spectacle—a extraordinary even for the Club New York—would be staged at one of her treasure tables. Any men who expected the expected principal players. She awaited them eagerly.

It was not every day that a young society woman, her husband and recently divorced, and an elderly roue who was the man cause of the divorce would foregather at the Club New York and celebrate the event together. It was to be a merry party of three.

Only one factor spoiled Lucy's anticipation. She had been explicitly warned to keep the reason of the meeting secret. She could see the commercial value of the event.

dividual, probably in his fifties; a young woman and a young man. The young woman had ash-blond hair, rather expressionless large brown eyes and full, petulant lips. Her complexion was well made. She smoked incessantly one gold-tipped cigarette after another, and her smile was mechanical, except when she looked at the older man. Then even the most casual observer could see she was infatuated with him. And the casual observer would wonder why.

"Fully thirty years older than the woman, rumor insisted the red hair was part of a wig, and rumor was quite correct. And if this did not lend sufficient of the burlesque to the strange passion, the white even teeth, which he took out every night and put in a glass of water, capped the comedy. And yet this man was credited with more conquests of silly women than he more ambitious and younger

The Three Seemed Oblivious to the Whispering, Although They Must Have Felt They Were Being Talked About. Perhaps They Were Absorbed in Their Own Bizarre Conversation.

Now the guests were coming in singly, in pairs and in parties of six. Lucy called them by name so all should hear and the guests strove to maintain that easy nonchalance of celebrities accustomed to being pointed out in the thoroughfares. And most of them were celebrities only to their stenographers—and some to the fingerprint experts. The common denominator of Lucy's mixed society was the dinner jacket.

"How's boy?" Lucy guffawed. "Hello, honey?" "Why, Mrs. Van Swinetholm! So glad to see you (this to a grizzled who had married a young college rounder and had been paid off liberally). And Jimmy! (who was a buyer and knew his New York). "How's every little thing? That's good. Coming back to get typewritten paper? Oh—excuse me!"

Lucy hurried down the corridor leading to the cloak room, for her quick eye had caught the eagerly waiting three-comers. She paused before them, beaming.

"Well," she beamed, "this is—Oliver Sewell smiled slightly. "Lucy," he said, "this is Mrs. Filson, and — Mr. Edison. Neither of them, I believe, has been here before."

"But I've heard lots about you," Mrs. Edison confided. Her divorced husband merely bowed. Lucy escorted the three to a table from the orchestra, where they could see without being seen. Lucy stared at themselves. She wondered why Mrs. Edison should add this to her first visit to the club. Lucy had witnessed her on countless occasions and Mrs. Edison had always come with a will. "But what the hell!" mused Lucy, "if a woman wants to lie to her husband even after they are divorced, it's none of my business."

As she guffawed as she escorted them, and sent the waiter to fetch the watered champagne, she added this to her first visit to the club. Lucy had witnessed her on countless occasions and Mrs. Edison had always come with a will. "But what the hell!" mused Lucy, "if a woman wants to lie to her husband even after they are divorced, it's none of my business."

Sneeze Once Welcomed as Harbinger of Luck

Xenophon, addressing his newly elected generals, pleaded with them henceforth to wage implacable war with the enemy. "We have—the godswilling—many fair hopes of deliverance." As he spoke this last word a mna sneezed. When the soldiers heard it, with one impulse they all made obeisance to Zeus. "I move, gentlemen," spoke Xenophon, "since at the moment when we were talking about deliverance an omen from Zeus the savior was revealed to us, that we make a vow to sacrifice to that god thank-offerings for deliverance as soon as we reach a friendly land. All in favor of this motion will raise their hands." We read in the Anabasis that every man in the assembly raised his hand. Thereupon they made their vows and stuck up the pears, prepared to face the perils of the celebrated retreat.

This seems strange to us who have lived to see the sneeze of epidemics destroy more men than were killed in all the wars of Greece. So we fear the drafts of alternating warm and cold days—New York Times.

Really Drunken Animals

It is now an established fact that a good deal of drunkenness exists in the animal world, among the chief offenders being the bees. Lombroso has asserted that intoxication were the cause of crime among many animals, and has cited instances of the sheep and goats of Abyssinia, which go out on regular sprees, eating (to them) the inebriating beans of the coffee plant, and thoroughly enjoying the condition they find themselves in!

No Arsenic in Garlic

The Department of Agriculture says that under ordinary circumstances garlic does not contain arsenic. There have been cases recorded in which an arsenic spray was used on the blossoms of fruits and vegetables which resulted in a small quantity of arsenic being found in the fruit or vegetable. However, it is rare.

If we are to sell American goods in South America we must buy some of their products."

Not long ago Paul Busch, assistant to the Mayor of Berlin, Germany, made an inspection tour of American fruit producing and marketing structures and indicated that the Berlin district could consume annually the surplus fruit crop of California if some trade reciprocity could be arranged.

"Germany needs the fruit of California and Florida," said Senator Connally, "and wants to buy their surplus but cannot do so unless Germany can ship goods to the United States in payment. If we are to sell American pork, cotton and wheat to Germany and other countries of Europe we must permit those countries to ship us goods in return. They do not have the gold to make payment."

"When the debenture plan of farm relief was pending in the Senate," continued Senator Connally, "President Hoover solemnly warned Congress that foreign governments would retaliate for such an enactment by establishing countervailing duties. We have not been told by the administration why such foreign governments would so act in the case of a debenture and not in the case of a prohibitive tariff."

Senator Borah, Republican of Idaho, assails the new tariff bill from another angle—one peculiarly concerned with the President. Borah denounces the flexible tariff provision as exceeding in wickedness any proposal in the new tariff bill.

Those who propose the transformation of the Tariff Commission from a non-partisan to a partisan body, bestowing on the President practically absolute power to do with tariff rates as they like, base their proposal on President Hoover's message to Congress calling for the reorganization of the Tariff Board.

THEATERS

NEW PICTURE FOR HAINES

For the past 15 years, "Alias Jimmy Valentine" has been perhaps the most sensationally and perennially successful play on the American stage.

For over a generation, young and old America alike have thrilled, laughed and cried over the story of the dashing young crook who outwits the police forces of half a dozen cities, only to give himself away at last by cracking the safe in which is imprisoned the sister of the girl he loves.

Now Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has taken the story and made it as modern as the costumes of the year after next. This, the organizational's initial talking picture, is at the Cliftona Theater.

Haines, who gained his first reputation as the premier wise-cracker of the American screen, brings to "Alias Jimmy Valentine" a sense of comedy that has been mellowed and softened by experience. To assist him in his laughs, Karl Dane and Tully Marshall, two of the most experienced laugh-getters of the screen, contribute what is perhaps the best performance of their career. The three of them bring a new idea to the screen, that of a comedy trio instead of a comedy team. Their work together is a sensation.

As leading lady, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer selected Leila Hyams, who was chosen by Henry Clive, the noted artist and illustrator, as the most beautiful blonde in Hollywood. Clive interviewed more than 5,000 blondes before making his decision. Miss Hyams brings to "Alias Jimmy Valentine," more than a year's experience with motion pictures as well as a verve and personality that is vivid and refreshing.

"THE VALIANT" AT GRAND Johnny Mack Brown and Margaret Churchill appear as son and mother in the great Vitaphone picture which shows at the Grand for the last time tonight, in "The Valiant."

Johnny Mack Brown in the role of a downcast, no good youth who refuses to disclose his identity, brings heart stirring drama right to your home with his love of his family.

Margaret Churchill plays the role of a proud mother. "The Valiant" is based on the play by the same name by Rupert Middlemass and Holworthy Hall.

DARRO STARTS TUESDAY Joe E. Brown and Frankie Darro open at the Grand in "The Circus Kid" on Tuesday and play through Thursday. The scene of the show is the thrill-stomping clowns and man-eating monsters of the jungle.

Secret of Composition of China Long Sought

The making of china is an intricate and long-drawn-out process. It once required 25 different operations and four weeks' time to make even the dumsy white plates which are found in cheap restaurants. The finer chinas require the highest of skilled labor and materials, and their decoration is an art in itself. Many tried in vain to discover the secret of the composition. Eventually various attempts were attended with success in Italy and France. In 1709 a German alchemist named Boettger discovered the process after years of study. By the end of the Eighteenth century Germany had not less than seventeen potteries. It was, however, the Oriental and East Indian companies, which placed the charm of chinaware, which for centuries was so rare that only princes, kings or nobles could possess a piece of it, within the common reach of the average family.

The Skyscraper Murder

by SAMUEL SPEWACK

DWELLERS in big cities go from one mystery to another these days. Crimes are committed, men and women are killed in apparently the most open fashion and frequently that is the last heard of it. Of course, there is an investigation—there is always that. Then, after the customary seven days allotted to wonders, the whole thing drops out of sight.

But not so with the Skyscraper Murder. Here is one that was run to earth and in the process the delvers into the mystery are given plenty of thrills.

Mr. Spewack is a master hand at depicting situations of this sort. Obviously the story is fiction but perhaps there will be those who can see in it a marked resemblance to actuality.

There is a thrill a day in the Skyscraper Murder.

CHAPTER I. A DIVORCE PARTY.

DNIGHT at the Club New York, and Lucy Lally, a girl of hostesses, prepared to welcome her glib guests. A word with the head waiter, a word with her chef, a word with Lucy Lally's Jazz Harmonists, two words with her unofficial bartender and wine steward, and three words with her little girls—for these last were the chief attraction of the Club New York, and Lucy knew it.

Lucy was what her patrons called a "hot sketch." A born clown and sycophant, she had won peculiar distinction by confiding each one of the glibest-seekers that they were dubs and she was out to swindle them. This tickled their vanities, and they came back for more. So Lucy watered her champagne and commanded her little girls to supply the necessary fizz, which was cheaper, and as the guests were concerned, more effective. Her profits were so enormous she never complained of the heavy toll of graft paid to enforcement officers. The Club New York, in consequence, was never raided and the guests feared no sudden and sometimes unwelcome notoriety. And Lucy grew rich and fat.

You could find at Lucy's a sociological cross-section of New York; debutantes and demimondaines, bankers and bootleggers, and buyers, thieves, actors, screen deities, panderers, pick-pockets and a goodly number of stupid but otherwise harmless bourgeois who looked at Lucy as they looked at their books, plays, newspapers and love affairs—as a source of color to singularly colorless lives.

And Lucy went from one to the other, back-slapping and hand-shaking, surveying each one with her shrewd blue eyes, laughing constantly in overflowing good nature, and calling for cheers, applause and noisy merriment until the dawn.

At 1 a. m. you could hear Lucy's guffaws above the rhythmic waiting of the band. It was then she presented her dancing girls, whom she underpaid and overworked, and with whom gentlemen could sit at tables for the price of a hundred-dollar bill, and feel they were rich dogs indeed.

dividual, probably in his fifties; a young woman and a young man. The young woman had ash-blond hair, rather expressionless large brown eyes and full, petulant lips. Her complexion was well made. She smoked incessantly one gold-tipped cigarette after another, and her smile was mechanical, except when she looked at the older man. Then even the most casual observer could see she was infatuated with him. And the casual observer would wonder why.

Fully thirty years older than the woman, rumour insisted the red hair was part of a wig, and rumor was quite correct. And if this did not lend sufficient of the burlesque to the strange passion, the white even teeth, which he took out every night and put in a glass of water, capped the comedy. And yet this man was credited with more conquests of silly women than the more ambitious and younger

The Three Seemed Oblivious to the Whispering, Although They Must Have Felt They Were Being Talked About. Perhaps They Were Absorbed in Their Own Bizarre Conversation.

Now the guests were coming in singly, in pairs and in parties of six. Lucy called them by name so all should hear and the guests strove to maintain that easy nonchalance of celebrities accustomed to being pointed out in the thoroughfares. And most of them were celebrities only to their stenographers—and some to the fingerprint experts. The common denominator of Lucy's mixed society was the dinner jacket.

"Howza boy!" Lucy guffawed. "Hello, honey . . ." "Why, Mrs. Van Swinethol!" So glad to see you (this to a grisette who had married a young college rounder and had been paid off liberally). And Jimmy! (who was a buyer and knew his New York). "How's every little thing? That's good. Coming back to get kyped proper? Oh—excuse me!"

Lucy hurried down the corridor leading to the cloak room, for her quick eye had caught the eagerly waited three-some. She paused before them, beaming.

"Well!" she boomed. "This is—Oliver Sewell smiled slightly. "Lucy," he said, "this is Mrs. Edison . . . and . . . Mr. Edison. Neither of them, I believe, has been here before. "But I've heard lots about you," Mrs. Edison confided. Her divorced husband merely bowed.

Lucy escorted the three to a table from the orchestra, where they could see without being unduly stared at themselves. She wondered why Mrs. Edison pretended this to be her first visit to the club. Lucy had welcomed her on countless occasions and Mrs. Edison had always come with Sewell. "But what the hell!" mused Lucy, "if a woman wants to lie to her husband even after they get divorced, it's none of my business."

And she guffawed as she seated them, and sent the waiter scurrying for the watered champagne.

Lucy had seated a strange trio. The guests who marked them saw an elderly red-haired in-

Bank Mystery!

A month ago Willard H. Elliott (lower), executive vice-president of a Passaic, N. J., bank, was kidnapped under circumstances that were never explained. He was found days later apparently unharmed. Now three banks controlled by the same interests as his bank, have been closed by order of State Banking Commissioner Frank H. Smith, above. Officials are going so far as to intimate that Elliott's kidnapping was to get him away during unusual financial transactions.

Sneeze Once Welcomed as Harbinger of Luck

Xenophon, addressing his newly elected generals, pleaded with them henceforth to wage implacable war with the enemy. "We have—the godswilling—many fair hopes of deliverance." As he spoke this last word a man sneezed. When the soldiers heard it, with one impulse they all made obeisance to Zeus. "I move, gentlemen," spoke Xenophon, "since at the moment when we were talking about deliverance an omen from Zeus the savior was revealed to us, that we make a vow to sacrifice to that god thank-offerings for deliverance as soon as we reach a friendly land. All in favor of this motion will raise their hands." We read in the Anabasis that every man in the assembly raised his hand. Thereupon they made their vows and stuck up the pearn, prepared to face the perils of the celebrated retreat.

This seems strange to us who have lived to see the sneeze of epidemics destroy more men than were killed in all the wars of Greece. So we fear the drafts of alternating warm and cold days.—New York Times.

Really Drunken Animals

It is now an established fact that a good deal of drunkenness exists in the animal world, among the chief offenders being the bees. Lombroso has asserted that intoxicated was the cause of crime among many animals, and has cited instances of the sheep and goats of Abyssinia, which go out on regular sprees, eating (to them) the inebriating beans of the coffee plant, and thoroughly enjoying the condition they find themselves in!

No Arsenic in Garlic

The Department of Agriculture says that under ordinary circumstances garlic does not contain arsenic. There have been cases recorded in which an arsenic spray was used on the blossoms of fruits and vegetables which has resulted in a small quantity of arsenic being found in the fruit or vegetable. However, it is rare.

GIVE MILK AS FOOD, NOT AS A BEVERAGE

Mothers Err in Believing that Fruit Juices and Milk Supply Sufficient Liquid, Says Authority—Baby Should Have Plenty of Pure Water Each Day.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York. Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NOT long ago I happened to be in conversation with two young mothers. They asked many questions, so I asked a few. I inquired of each one how much water she gave her baby.

One of the young women seemed horrified at the idea of giving water to a baby. "Why," she said, "milk and orange juice contain all the water required." Frankly, I do not agree with this dear mother, but do share the view of the other, who said she gives her baby water several times a day.

It is too common a belief that milk is a beverage alone. In a sense it is, but I wish to impress upon everybody that milk is in reality a food and one of the most valuable of all foods. Its great place in the human dietary is due to the vital food elements it contains. It must not be regarded as merely a thirst destroyer.

In certain age groups milk is almost as essential as air. At every age milk is an important food. It is conspicuous for its digestibility. It contains the building and repair materials. It possesses the required salts and vitamins.

While milk contains a large percentage of water, its use does not do away with the necessity of giving water in addition. Neither does the giving of orange, prune or tomato juice, supply the necessary quantity of water.

In my opinion every baby should have water between its feedings. It must be pure water, made so by boiling and cooling.

Without water the intestines and kidneys are not flushed properly. As a result of the failure to remove waste the baby is not sweet. There is a sour smell. The urine is high-colored and irritating. It may produce scalding of the buttocks and surrounding parts.

The lack of water results in constipation. There must be an abundance of fluid to dissolve all the waste products and help to carry them away from the body.

The omission of water from the dietary places unfair labor upon the kidneys. Their work is easily interfered with if the urine is scanty and concentrated. Continual neglect may cause kidney trouble and other serious conditions.

Nobody need be afraid of pure water. It is necessary to infant health. It is vital to adult health. Try the magic of frequent drinks of water. Many a crying baby will be come quiet and happy if given a drink. Even colic will disappear if a little warm water is given.

It is no doubt an evil thing to be full of faults, yet it is a greater evil to be full of them, yet unwilling to recognize them, because that is to add the further fault of a voluntary blindness. Two Girls Murdered?

Lack of information regarding the deaths of Miss Cecile Cornellier, organist at St. Joseph's French Catholic Church of Haverhill, Mass., and her friend, Mrs. Yvonne Corroveau, of Lawrence, Mass., is baffling all police efforts. An autopsy will be followed by an inquest into the deaths, also continued grilling of the two male companions of the girls on the night they were drowned.

Monarch's Perquisites

King's pines was the name given to pine trees in the American colonies reserved by the British government for use as masts in the navy. Such trees were marked while standing and nobody but the government was permitted to cut them, not even the owner of the land.

Finda Buried Gas Main

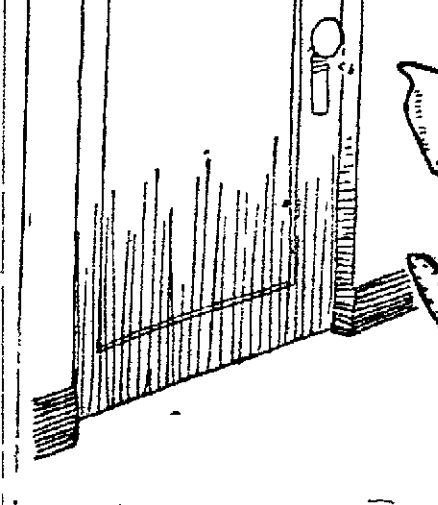

Successful application of the magnetic compass, the type which has been used by mariners for hundreds of years, has been made by a gas company in finding gas mains, the exact location of which was known, says Popular Mechanics Magazine.

By leading the compass at the surface, the deflection of the needle aided the engineers in finding the mains.

Mental Fatigue

Some persons are born tired, others attain it and others have tiredness thrust upon them by a nervous and emotional civilization. Mental fatigue can "knock us out" physically or can make us feel as if we were physically ill even though there is nothing wrong with our bodies, says Dr. Lauren H. Smith in Hygeia Magazine.

GIVE MILK AS FOOD, NOT AS A BEVERAGE

Mothers Err in Believing that Fruit Juices and Milk Supply Sufficient Liquid, Says Authority—Baby Should Have Plenty of Pure Water Each Day.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

NOT long ago I happened to be in conversation with two young mothers. They asked many questions, so I asked a few. I inquired of each one how much water she gave her baby.

One of the young women seemed horrified at the idea of giving water to a baby. "Why," she said, "milk and orange juice contain all the water required." Frankly, I do not agree with this dear mother, but do share the view of the other, who said she gives her baby water several times a day.

It is too common a belief that milk is a beverage alone. In a sense it is, but I wish to impress upon everybody that milk is in reality a food and one of the most valuable of all foods. Its great place in the human dietary is due to the vital food elements it contains. It must not be regarded as merely a thirst destroyer.

In certain age groups milk is almost as essential as air. At every age milk is an important food. It is conspicuous for its digestibility. It contains the building and repair materials. It possesses the required salts and vitamins.

While milk contains a large percentage of water, its use does not do away with the necessity of giving water in addition. Neither does the giving of orange, prune or tomato juice, supply the necessary quantity of water.

In my opinion every baby should have water between its feedings. It must be pure water, made so by boiling and cooling.

Without water the intestines and kidneys are not flushed properly. As a result of the failure to remove waste the baby is not sweet. There is a sour smell. The urine is high-colored and irritating. It may produce scalding of the buttocks and surrounding parts.

The lack of water results in constipation. There must be an abundance of fluid to dissolve all the waste products and help to carry them away from the body.

The omission of water from the dietary places unfair labor upon the kidneys. Their work is sadly interfered with if the urine is scanty and concentrated. Continual neglect may cause kidney trouble and other serious conditions.

Nobody need be afraid of pure water. It is necessary to infant health. It is vital to adult health. Try the magic of frequent drinks of water. Many a crying baby will become quiet and happy if given a drink. Even colic will disappear if a little warm water is given.

Don't Fool Yourself

It is no doubt an evil thing to be full of faults, yet it is a greater evil to be full of them, yet unwilling to recognize them, because that is to add the further fault of a voluntary illusion. We do not like others to deceive us, we do not think it just in them to require more esteem from us than they deserve; it is therefore unjust that we should deceive them, desiring more esteem from them than we deserve.—Pascal.

Unworldliness

To know there is a world of truth without error, beauty without defect, goodness unsullied by self, love white as snow, pure as flame . . . to believe to the point of self-committal in that perfect world, to walk in it by faith and hope, to trust it, to find our true joy in it, to be remade by it—that is unworldliness.—A. E. Wildham.

Friendship's Value

There is no man that imparteth his joys to his friend, but he joyeth the more; and no man that imparteth his griefs to his friend, but he grieveth the less.—Lord Bacon.

Lack of information regarding the deaths of Miss Cecile Cornellier, organist at St. Joseph's French Catholic Church of Haverhill, Mass., and her friend, Mrs. Yvonne Corroveau, of Lawrence, Mass., is baffling all police efforts. An autopsy will be followed by an inquest into the deaths, also continued grill-ing of the two male companions of the girls on the night they were drowned.

MANY ATTEND CAMPMEETING

What promises to be the largest campmeeting in years held on the old Stoutsville camp ground opened Thursday evening under the auspices of the Circleville United Brethren church of the Southeast Ohio conference. Fifteen new tents have been purchased making 50 in all and all are occupied and many have been turned away. Edna Beougher Hughes, Ohio's girl evangelist, preached the opening sermon in a powerful manner, after which six young folks came forward and consecrated their lives to God. This talented young evangelist is doing a mighty work and will preach every morning during the encampment. The O. E. Williams party consisting of Dr. and Mrs. Williams and Prof. Roy MacMurray arrived Saturday afternoon. Dr. Williams gave his opening sermon Saturday evening, "The New Dawn," was his subject, preaching with all his old time power and enthusiasm.

Mr. McMurray, the musical wizard playing about ten different instruments is again delighting the people with his musical selections. A new one being the Viba-phone, which softly played during prayer is like incense in sound going up to God. Mrs. Williams still sings, more sweetly than ever and is working with the young people.

Each day Dr. Williams brings the Bible study at 2:30. Come.

Rickshaw Drawing Not Heavy Physical Labor

Adolph Basler, director of the physiological institute of the Sun Yat sen university in Canton, China, recently made some interesting observations on the rate of work performed by a coolie drawing a rickshaw. This form of remuneration is peculiar in that the force exerted is practically all forward. The arms are held by the shafts of the vehicle, and since the vehicle's center of gravity is over the axle, the coolie does not have to exert any upward force. The work he does is consequently the same as if he were pulling a weight by a cord running over a pulley. It was found that the rickshaw coolie ran from four to six miles an hour, consuming during fast locomotion about one tenth of a horse power—the same, that is as if he were drawing five and a half pounds one foot in each second. This is over and above the amount of work the coolie would do while running at the same pace without pulling the loaded vehicle. The expenditure of energy is much less than that of the oarsmen in a university boat race.

Epicurean Shark

In the capacious interior of a six-foot man eating leopard shark, caught at Miami, Fla., a taxidermist found a porcupine fish, two leather jack fish, six rabbit feet, six chick legs and a sprinkling of feathers. Two pigeons, banded on the leg with numbers, six anchovies, a cow fish, a lizard fish, a sabre fish, a loat fish and a variety of unidentified specimens.

Famous Old Coach

The present coach of the lord mayor of London was in use before the American Revolution, having been built in 1757. A six-foot man wearing a silk hat can stand in it and not touch the top.

Eugenics Not So New

Some commentaries of the ancient Jewish Talmud in line with modern eugenic principles were reported by William Grossman, Hebrew scholar of Passaic, N. J., to the American Eugenics society.

MANY ATTEND CAMPMEETING

What promises to be the largest campmeeting in years held on the old Stoutsville camp ground opened Thursday evening under the auspices of the Circleville United Brethren church of the Southeast Ohio conference. Fifteen new tents have been purchased making 50 in all and all are occupied and many have been turned away. Edna Beougher Hughes, Ohio's girl evangelist, preached the opening sermon in a powerful manner, after which six young folks came forward and consecrated their lives to God. This talented young evangelist is doing a mighty work and will preach every morning during the encampment. The O. E. Williams party consisting of Dr. and Mrs. Williams and Prof. Roy MacMurrey arrived Saturday afternoon. Dr. Williams gave his opening sermon Saturday evening; "The New Dawn," was his subject, preaching with all his old time power and enthusiasm.

Mr. McMurrey, the musical wizard playing about ten different instruments is again delighting the people with his musical selections, a new one being the Viba-phone, which softly played during prayer is like incense in sound going up to God. Mrs. Williams still sings, more sweetly than ever and is working with the young people.

Each day Dr. Williams brings the Bible study at 2:30. Come.
